

Hello,

I am writing in response to the possibility of the Indiana Do Not Call Law possibly being lessened by a federal law. WHAT ARE YOU INSANE??? This has allowed for me to have much more time with my family, and not talk to people selling, caskets, photographs, or anything else. I can eat dinner without taking the phone off of the hook. If the government should do anything, they should make a national law that is stronger than Indiana's. This new one should not allow politicians to call either. Politicians are no different than telemarketers, they want one to do something for them, that is VOTE. Voting is a personal action, and if that candidate needs to use the phone as a medium, then he shouldn't be running in the first place. DO NOT lessen the Do Not Call law in Indiana or any other state, or you will have a state that is very angry.
